How much wood would a kitchen renovation truck? As much as the budget allows. It might not rhyme, but it (mostly) makes sense. When it comes to kitchen and bath, Textures Nashville always recommends their wood products. Founder Andrew Denny notes: "Our materials are perfect for kitchen and bath designs because they are organic and timeless. They bring a beauty that only nature can create." Since launching in 2004, the business has been the preferred partner of interior designers, architects and custom home builders in the South. Denny adds: "Our collaborative approach and exclusive relationships with the finest mills ensure that our floors will stand the test of time in style and longevity. Whether selecting hardwood flooring and interior millwork, sourcing something specific for a new project or creating custom work, Textures has the capability to bring design visions to life."

Perfect Palettes

Reflecting upon today's color trends, Denny discusses the company's latest inventory. "Our new lineup of materials pays homage to a traditional Southern color palette," he explains. "It features light earth tones that exude subtle richness and warmth. These colors—ranging from naturals and driftwood to cognacs and whiskey—embody the timeless elegance and charm of the South."

Water on Wood

One must treat wood furniture, decor and detailing with love and care. As Denny says: "Wood is always living and always responding to its environment. Humidity and temperature—common factors in kitchen and bath design—impact a wood's disposition, whether it's hardwood flooring or any wood product. We always encourage the use of stabilized hardwood floors in home design when possible, as they are much more resistant to temperature and moisture."

Top Designers Amber Thomas and Richard Anuszkiewicz composed this stunning kitchen, with flooring from the Textures Foundation Collection in F-07 European White Oak.
